

ACP Central America Chapter Meeting and Panamanian Society of Internal Medicine Congress

February 2-3, 2024

Panama City, Panama

Global Ambassador reflections by: Omar T. Atiq, MD, MACP

It was a pleasure and an honor to represent the national ACP at the XLV Annual Meeting of ACP Central America Chapter with participation of the Panamanian Society of Internal Medicine on February 2-3, 2024, at the Sortis Hotel in Panama City, Panama.

I was impressed and thoroughly enjoyed my stay in such a rich culture with well-grounded and affectionate colleagues. It was a privilege to be with my Central American colleagues and to participate in our ACP Central America Chapter activities. The presentations were top notch, and the meeting participation and attendance was the best I have seen.

As the Governor, Dr. Eric Ulloa should be rightly proud of his leadership team for arranging a remarkable meeting. I also witnessed the respect and love for Dr. Ulloa among his colleagues during my time in Panama.

The Panamanian hospitality was amazing, starting from the pickup at the airport, the fascinating guided tour of Panama City, visit to the Panama Canal, the museum and the mall, and the trip to the lake, the sumptuous meals with wonderful colleagues to the exceptionally warm welcome at the pre-Congress student and resident presentations and the subsequent International Congress. It was incomparable.
